

Karen Lorraine Law was born October 12, 1956, to Norma Jean and Richard Hall Vaughn in Brownsville, Texas. She is survived by the love of her life; Howard Law, her parents, and her siblings: Mike Vaughn, Susan Timmons, and Lisa McMurrin. Her children; Chanel Wilcox, Chad Law, Kendrick Law, and Brock Wilcox and her grandchildren; Devin Bateman, and Kaylin Major.

Karen grew up all over the country from Texas to North Dakota; from Kansas to Seattle, and everywhere she went she made friends along the way. Karen began her long work history as a waitress, later she found her passion in dentistry where she would flourish for over forty years first as an assistant and finally working her way up to office manager.

Her love of God and her faith were a centerpiece in her life, and her journey with Jesus could be seen by anyone who spent any time at all with her. Her love for the church and Christ would ignite a fire that would take her to the streets of Seattle, the bridges of Tacoma, to the oppressed, to the needy, and as far as the mission field in Guatemala, and Nicaragua. She was the strength behind her husband's call to ministry, and she served beside him as a youth pastor, English ministries pastor, and finally to Nebraska as a senior pastors wife.

Karen's compassion and mercy heart were evident in the non-profit she began to assist recovering addicts by giving them the dental work they would need to regain their self-esteem, allowing them a chance to restart their lives, and become productive members of the community.

Her volunteer efforts included her work with children not only in the church as a Sunday School teacher for over seventeen years, or as a Girl Scout leader, or school room volunteer, but even recently as she mentored a young student in her community through a program called TeamMates. She stood up for the oppressed children serving as a CASA volunteer, something she did with great zeal and enthusiasm, giving a voice to the child in the judicial process.

Karen loved being creative, and she found her medium in clay. She was a skilled potter who loved carving her whimsical creatures far more than making simple bowls or cups. As with everything she did, and from her passion for clay would spring her own line called KLaw Kreation.

She was loved by many, adored by all, and was a friend so faithful and true. She will not only be missed, but this world also will not be the same without her.
